The AMA News put out by the American Medical Association Squib says that so-called crib deaths are caused by real disease, neither predictable nor necessarily preventable says Dr. Abraham B. Bergman. Deaths are not due to negligence or error by parents, he says.

Bulletin from the National Grange says "You can only start from where you are".

The Associated Press sends a release which says that Eddie Adams was the photographer who snapped the picture of South Vietnam's Chief of Police shooting the Viet Cong prisoner in the head.

As General Loan raised his pistol to shoot the prisoner in the head, Adams instinctively raised his camera and took the picture as the bullet slammed in to the man's head.

Trucking industry says that close cooperation between the states and the trucking industry is the key to success to bring new job producing industries to Kentucky.

The American Trucking Association sends out a little booklet entitled "The Manipulators, the duping of the free press by railroad propagandists". We didn't read it but figured it was a one sided argument.

Hope Drops For Miners This Morning

By ROBERT C. WELLING MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Wives and mothers of 78 men trapped deep in a fiery, explosive coal mine gathered fearfully Friday to hear the explosive sound of the latest of a series of massive underground explosions.

"Very devastating," a company official told them. "It's not a good sign."

The women sobbed with anguish. The hope they had dared cling to was being crushed by the belching gas and raging flames that made rescue operations impossible.

Mannington No. 9 mine has defied man's attempts to mount a rescue strategy in the fast-diminishing hope of finding the men safe in a sheltered portion of the seven miles of tunnel that snake 700 feet below the scarred West Virginia soft coal country.

Belching smoke and rocked by gas explosions, the mine has held rescue crews at bay since initial blasts turned the underground caverns into an oven early Wednesday, as 99 men worked the graveyard shift. Twenty one were rescued or clambered to safety, but the other 78 were trapped.

With the latest massive explosion Friday, hope all but vanished.

James McCartney, public information officer for Consolidation Coal Co., said smoke was gushing from Atha's portal.

Raging fires and thick, black smoke containing toxic and explosive gases have prevented rescue attempts.

Corcoran said the company would meet today with the families of the mine's 328 employees to work out a plan for economic help in the meantime.

The Mannington mine accident was the second major one in West Virginia this year. Last May, 25 men were trapped in an underground flood at a mine near Hinton Falls in Southern West Virginia. Four were killed, 15 were found alive after six days, and six were rescued 10 days later after having subsisted on brackish mine water and six sandwiches.

Scot Debate Team To Be Here Monday

The debate team from Strathclyde University, Glasgow, Scotland, will meet a Murray State University team in an international debate Monday night at 8:00 p. m. in the University Auditorium. This debate will be open to the public. Admission will be fifty cents at the door.

The two members of the British team, both from Scotland, combined their talents last Spring to win the British National Debate Championship over all of the universities in the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland.

Victor J. McCall is 24 years old and has an honors degree in political science from the University of Strathclyde. His B. A. degree was awarded in the Spring of 1968. James W. Hutchison is 21 years old and will graduate in June of 1969.

Both boys have been active in politics. MacCall is currently Chairman of the Scottish Young Conservatives. Hutchison has served as president of the University Liberal Party, and was the youngest editor of Strathclyde University paper in the history of the school.

The Murray State University team will be Jack Eli and Mike L. Smith. Jack lives at 1609 Fulton Ave. He is a graduate of Lyon County H. S., and received a B. A. Degree from Murray State University in June 1967 with a major in Speech. In January 1969 he will complete his course work for the Master's Degree, again with a major in Speech. After graduation he will be a graduate assistant at Southern Illinois University while he works toward the Ph. D. in Speech.

The anchor man on the Murray team will be Mike L. Smith of Route 1, Murray. Mike graduated from Calloway H. S. He will complete his B. A. Degree in January with a major in Speech. He was a member of his high school debate team for three years, and has been a four year college debater. He has one of the most outstanding debate records of any past Murray Varsity debater.

The topic of the debate is typical of British debate. It is Resolved: That intellectuals should stay in their ivory towers. This subject has the possibilities of a great deal of wit and humor from the speakers, and at the same time is a serious theme in government and education.

Murray State University is the only Kentucky school on the itinerary of the Scottish team. Forty schools in all are included. The scheduling is made through the Speech Association of America, and the Speech Division of Murray State University under direction of Professor J. Albert Tracy.

Garrett Beshear

Familiar Face Missing As MSU Basketball To Open

A familiar face will be missing when the Murray State University basketball season opens November 30.

For the first time since 1958 Garrett Beshear won't be at his usual seat at the official scorer's table.

Beshear, coach at Murray University School and one of Murray State University's all-time great basketball players, died unexpectedly this summer (July 24).

He had kept the official score book for the MSU home basketball games and the Murray record book at some of the away games for the past 10 years.

According to Murray State coach, Cal Luther, Beshear started keeping the book the same season that Luther began as head coach of the Thoroughbreds.

"Garrett missed only one or two home games during the 10 years," said Luther, "and these were due to schedule conflicts with his University School basketball games."

Beshear could always be counted on to work the Eastern and Western away games and an average of 13 home games each year.

"Often he would drive to the away games at his own expense to help us out," added Luther.

"Garrett had devised a score-keeping system that made the book more informative. For example, he had special markings that would show in which half the player committed personal fouls and if the player missed a free throw, whether it occurred during a bonus situation."

Beshear enjoyed a storybook Luther also recalled now Beshear would come into his office the next morning with the scorebook and review the entire game.
